THE FAIR

Was a great success. It commenced in the afternoon with an inundation of children who revelled in toys and ice-cream. In the evening the Hall of the Y. M. C. A., was so crowded that it took skillful engineering to navigate one's way. There were seven booths, the floral bower being the first that greeted our eyes; to the right of it was the Post Office, where an excellent business was done, one valuable document however, mis-carried, which we were told, was a communication to the BULLETIN from the Foreign Office, offering us a high commission and an old uniform. The ice-cream table, gleaners table, center table, flower, candy and toy stalls were all attended by enthusiastic ladies, to whom "no" was no answer. The auction sale was the event of the evening; J. Mott Oat was worn out and his place taken by Mr. C. M. Cooke. Everything was sold, and very cheap. Fortunately it wasn't Saturday night, so we had no money. One gentleman purchased a pair of corsets, and people were of opinion, from his shapely figure, that he always wore them. Another pair was knocked down to the captain who has been once congratulated upon the splendid appearance of his steamer.

Other gentlemen were seen with tidies, pincushions, bibs, doll sand everything appertaining to the feminine and juvenile world, but no matter, it was all in a good cause and over $800 was received for the Y. M. C. A. institution. We gazed upon the scene when all had departed and saw a bare room, bare tables, one only having a few toys on it, a small quantity of ice-cream and a dim light. What a change had taken place in our brief hour! To the ladies, who kindly devoted their time and services, is due nearly all the credit for the great success they achieved.

THE WORKING MEN'S UNION.

The usual weekly meeting took place on Tuesday evening, about forty persons being present.

The report of the Executive Committee stated that all accounts for supplies to the German women had not yet been received, and consequently a balance sheet had not been prepared.

An account of $18.50, from Mrs. May, for superintendence, care, giving out stores, and vegetables supplied to the German women, was approved.

The Employment Committee reported having found work for two of the last German women who had arrived in Honolulu.

The motion restricting the time of remarks for ordinary business, and for the good of the Union, to five and ten minutes respectively, was negatived.

Mr. Danielewicz tendered his resignation as a member of the organization, in consequence of the resolution passed prohibiting the discussion of socialism. He stating in his letter of resignation

"1st, That time is equally precious to every human being, and that consequently,

2nd, The amount of time expended in the creation of any necessities or comforts of life should, in justice, be the measure of all values, and that

3d, Cost must be the limit of price. That the realization of these principles is best attainable by the institution of a system of governmental co-operation of industries and agriculture, and that nothing short of such a system can insure justice to the working people and bring about the so much desired harmony in society, the happiness of the human race. Should, at any time, the tactics of your organization have changed, and a broader policy replace its present one, I shall consider it my duty as a socialist to re-enter your ranks. In the meantime, I beg your permission to occupy a seat at the reporters' table as correspondent of San Francisco Truth."

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Danielewicz for the zeal and time he had spent in helping on the organization.

Mr. Crowley then attacked the Saturday Press and the BULLETIN, saying that their "tactics were mean in the extreme." The Advertiser (formerly the most abused paper) and the Gazette had refrained from any remarks, and the reason why Mr. Danielewicz resigned was because "he felt aggrieved at the miserable innuendoes of a section of the press."

Mr. Danielewicz said he resigned because he objected to the actions of the Union.

Mr. Crowley then "pitted the poor creatures" of the press who were "simply tools of those behind."

Mr. Cavevagh asked why he should pay $10 a week for his laborers, when plantations paid only $10 a month.

It was decided that nominations, for the election of officers, should be made at the next meeting, the elections to take place on Thursday, 20th inst.

The preparation of questions to candidates for political honors, who sought their suffrages, was left to Messrs. Marchand, Squires and Sherman, all being voters.

Mr. Crowley had scruples against serving on this committee, and these scruples were redoubled on reading, what he thought, a sensible paragraph in the Gazette, which advised them to leave politics to voters. He was not a voter, so desired to withdraw his name from the committee. He would not accept letters of denization, and exchange the large letters of denization he now held for the small ones he might get.

The first Thursday in the new year was selected for a debate, the subject, selected from four proposed, to be, as moved by Mr. Z. Y. Squires, "The best method of getting rid of Chinese, and so giving foreign and native laborers a chance to live on the Hawaiian Islands."

A balance on hand of $2.25 was reported, and the meeting adjourned.

PROMPT PAYMENT.

It is unusual to hear that a Chinaman has insured his life, and it is still more unusual to hear of such prompt payment of claims as the following. On 15th February, Lee Loy, who was doing business in Hilo, insured his life in the Equitable Life Assurance Company for $3,000, under the fifteen year endowment plan. He paid a year's premium and died in September. On 31st October, Mr. A. J. Cartwright, the Honolulu agent of the Company, sent to the head office in New York, proof of Lee Loy's death; the matter having been placed in his hands two days previously. On 4th December, thirty four days after the papers left Honolulu, the wife of the deceased gave a receipt for $3,000, the full amount of her claim, the money having been sent from New York and handed to her. This instance not only shows the benefit of Life Assurance, but also the very prompt manner in which settlements are made by the Equitable Life Assurance Company, which did not even await itself of the power to withhold payment for sixty days, in a policy which had not been in force for three years. 579 1w b
